Business Profile

London-Wul Fibre Arts has established a unique market for fibre artists and now further engages the touring public with its cultural activities. As London-Wul respects the craft of hand spinning's history, it also ensures that it is preserved in a contemporary, lively manner. Visitors view historic artifacts and interpretive materials, then observe the modern applications, methods and interests in the craft.

London-Wul provides a singular location to visit a museum and art gallery; to shop for unique local crafts, supplies and art work; to participate in hands-on cultural experience and to learn a new skill.

Artists Profile

You might say that Heidi Wulfraat comes to fibre arts from its source.

As a B.Sc. (animal science), Heidi combines her passion for animals and her expertise in their care to produce some of the finest quality fibres available today. From her animals, the picturesque farm that is her home and the people who love and support her, Heidi draws a source of creativity expressed in colour, texture and playful wool art.

Attraction Profile

Hosted tours available on Reservation.

Group Minimum (10) required.

A brief history of wool production in Atlantic Canada is described in an animated and anecdotal presentation, enhanced by large interpretive panels throughout the center, hands on props and demonstrations.

A description of production methods employed at London-Wul is included while visitors are invited to view our working studio. Visitors are invited to try their hand at spinning yarn using an ancient drop spindle technique.

Schedule: 10 min interpretation of history, 15 min instruction (hands on spinning lesson)/ hands on exploration of production methods, 15 min visit to boutique, animal pasture and or dye plant garden/ question and answer.

Self guided visits available free of charge, include a brief overview (5-10 min duration).
